THE VALUE OF A PRIVATE/
INDEPENDENT SCHOOL EDUCATION

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16

7:00 - 8:30 PM

As independent schools first began to diversify, they did so by bringing students into their communities from singular economic and geographic backgrounds. Because the LSDC is aware of the danger of a single story, our aim is to reach all Boston area Black and Hispanic/Latinx families, to make ourselves known as schools that welcome and value a multitude of perspectives. We acknowledge the complex and difficult history of independent schools and understand the reservations families may have as they consider whether to enroll their child(ren) at a historically White institution. As members of the LSDC, we feel confident in our schools' commitment to diverse, equitable, and inclusive practices and in the transformational educational experience that each of our schools provides.
